THEY'RE FREE.

At press time, ABS-CBN reporter Ces Drilon and her two companions had started their three-hour trek down the heavily forested area where they had been held by heavily armed kidnappers the past 10 days, the Inquirer learned late last night.

The hostages were released to the custody of Indonesian, Sulu, Mayan Alangan (Sulu) and local community leaders. They had been negotiating with the kidnappers for the release of Drilon, her cameraman Henry Escandacion and Prof. Octavio Dela Cruz.

The Inquirer also learned that Sen. Loren Legarda had been involved in the negotiations for the last five days at the request of Drilon's family and ABS-CBN, where Legarda was a broadcaster for many years before running for the Senate.

The Inquirer learned that Legarda assured the captives' release without conditions or payment of ransom but on "purely humanitarian grounds."

No military or police elements were involved in the release.

US freezes Solaiman group assets

WASHINGTON—THE US Department of State on Monday designated the Philippine-based Rajah Solaiman Movement (RSM), its leader and several members as "global terrorists," and moved to impose financial sanctions against them.

The action against the group, its leader Ahmad Sanjoo and the other alleged members means that any bank accounts or other financial assets owned in the United States that belong to them must be frozen.

Americans are also prohibited from doing business with them.

Philippine National Police Director General Aurelio Ilagan welcomed the US move.

Lack of due diligence denies justice in extrajudicial cases

By TJ Bergeon

POOR FORENSIC INVESTIGATION by Philippine authorities is a major stumbling block in getting justice for victims of extrajudicial killings, the London-based rights group Amnesty International (AI) said yesterday.

AI Philippines Director Aurora Permaling said that even if cases had been filed against alleged perpetrators of summary executions, justice remained elusive.

"This is because forensic investigations of human rights violations are not done with due diligence, either because of unwillingness to do so or because of incompetence to do good investigations," Permaling said in a statement.

She also decried the slow prosecution of cases of extrajudicial killings, enforced disappearances and other human rights violations.

"The attitude of the Department of Justice and the judiciary should give rise to no lingering justice to victims of extrajudicial killings and enforced disappearances," Permaling said.

All noted that while incidents dipped last year, extrajudicial killings and disap-

Permaling said that while families of victims of killings and abductions could resort to filing for writs of amparo and habeas data to get justice, these were hardly known to most people.

"But even those who are not known by name of the ordinary people, the first

SPECIAL DELIVERY At about 4 p.m. on Tuesday, a special flight of four arrived at the Jose National Airport from Zamboanga City, bringing the inmates on the ground the past nine days over the kidnapping of Ces Drilon and her two companions by largely self-styled men. On board the plane is a lawyer allegedly with two duffel bags containing money. He was met reportedly by Khan, one of Isulan Mayor Absalom Sison's sons, in a pickup truck at plane side, which belongs to Sulu Vice Gov. Lady Ann Salalinda.

Spot market prices hit record low in peak price month

By Romel W. Domingo

THE BEING OF THE FIRM RUNNING the country's electricity spot market is stamped by wholesale prices hitting a record low last month when the rates were expected to peak because of strong demand due to the high humidity.

"This was certainly unexpected for what was supposed to be a peak price month," Lasse Holopainen, president of Philippine Electricity Market Corp. (PEMCO) said yesterday.

Wholesale prices at the Wholesale Electricity Spot Market (WESM) in May hit P1.80 per kilowatt-hour at-though it is not certain if the rates would stay at that level.

"This is significantly below the P5 per kWh that WESM was averaging before the May trading," Holopainen said.

He said PEMCO was still figuring out how this happened.

Holopainen said the reduced prices should be reflected in the June billing of customers of distribution utilities and suppliers who use WESM power plants.

Manila has announced a 42-cent per kWh rate reduction for this

By Michael Lim Ubac

A TAX RELIEF PACKAGE THAT President Benigno Aquino signed into law yesterday is expected to result in daily savings of P34 for each of the country's more than a million minimum wage earners, according to the principal authors of the measure.

Republic Act No. 9504 exempts minimum wage earners in the private sector and their counterparts in the public sector (national employees) from paying income tax.

Minimum wage earners in those paid the statutory minimum wage fixed by the regional wage boards receive P382 daily in Metro Manila, and from P180 to P250 in other regions.

The law, which no longer requires minimum wage earners to file income tax returns, also increased the personal exemptions of other earners.

NO MORE OBJECTIONS Miriam sees OK of Jpepa in August

By GFC Cabaogon Jr.

SEN. MIRIAM DEFENSOR Santiago expects the Senate to easily ratify the Japan-Philippines Economic Partnership Agreement (Jpepa) by August following assurances from the Japanese ambassador that the pact would not violate any provisions of the Philippine Constitution.

Santiago told reporters that Japanese Ambassador Makoto Katoaka "perhaps in a desire to enhance JP-Japan friendship," had given her a birthday present (she celebrated her birthday on June 12) by writing down what would be the content of the substance of a potential exchange of letters between Japan and the Philippines.

Exchange of notes

"The Japanese ambassador has indicated that he is amenable to an exchange of notes that he will sign, on the territory of Tokyo, where we shall convene what constitutional provisions are specifically concerned from the application of the Jpepa," said Santiago.

The senator said the exchange of notes would "essentially address" the issues raised against Jpepa, which if left hanging, might be used as a basis for a year recalling the agreement in the Supreme Court.

Santiago said the first clarification in the exchange of notes, which would take place either the Senate ratifies the Jpepa, would be a promise from Japan to comply with the Philippine Constitution with respect to health and ecology (which would address the question of pollution) and national treatment (reduce Filipino and Filipino companies would be given preferential treatment).

She said there were no more objections to Jpepa from her colleagues in the Senate as the minority leader himself was concerned with her assurances.

"We expect all administrative agencies to sign Jpepa and I did not expect the minority leader to accept the offer of the Japanese government," said Santiago.

Esperon puts on peacemaker's hat

By Christine G. Arellano

NEW PRESIDENTIAL ADVISOR ON THE Peace Process Hermenegildo Esperon Jr. took his oath today President Macapagal-Arroyo personally and promptly made a presentation on what was in his report as the peace adviser to the president and the peace talks of the government and Moro Islamic Liberation Front.

Depending on reports later, Esperon said he could not reveal what was in his report until he had met with the government negotiators with the MILF which had ended since last year.

The former deputy director of the Philippine State of Affairs had been going around talking "to the other side" since being appointed on June 8 and he hoped the President would give the government peace panel "direction and some guidelines" after yesterday's presentation.

He said his aim was for an agreement to be signed within eight weeks.

"I am just reiterating the desire of the President to have an agreement with the MILF; whether this will be a partial or final agreement, so that the people will not be unduly alarmed that we're not moving forward in the peace process," he said.

Charter changes

But later agreements between the government and the MILF may violate the Constitution, said another peace panel official yesterday. The Associated Press reported.

A just completed government legal study showed the Constitution would have to be amended to legalize some limited overlap with the MILF as being the peace long talks.

MILF spokesman Muthalifu Ispah said the legal study was a setback and would only prolong the process as a time when someone was crying because of the stalled talks.

"It's a blowback. They're treating a disagreement as a legal study," Ispah said.

Both sides have hoped several "confidence points" on the contentious issue of the size of a southern region that could be administered by Manila under a final peace accord. The government has now declared it would submit the points to a legal review, prompting the MILF protest.

RP to miss tourism target

By Tina Quinsamondo

THE PHILIPPINES will fail to meet its goal of attracting 5 million foreign tourists a year by 2010 due to poor transport links, according to Tourism Secretary Joseph "Joey" Duque.

President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo wants to significantly boost the number of tourists by the time she leaves office in 2010 but, despite private tourism and air-fuel-subsidy programs, the country cannot hit this target, he said.

Domestic and foreign tourists are the life of the Philippine economy, but the country's poor transport links and unreliable airports prevented the Philippines, which is now down 10th in the world, from making off as a major tourism player.

Hospitals back hike in seniors' discount

By Kristine L. Miao

PRIVATE HOSPITALS are against a proposed 10 Congress increase the senior citizens discount from 26 to 36 percent, saying it would cause them greater financial losses.

In a press briefing preceding the Private Hospitals Association of the Philippines (PHAP) and Hospital 677, which provides the higher discount for senior citizens of people 60 years old and above, would pay down to an "impossible situation."

PHAP president Roderic Beneria said the current 26 percent senior citizens' discount was already causing them financial problems.

According to Beneria, senior citizens use hospital services more than any other social group.

Growing and the elderly population is growing. Census statistics show that the population in the age-group 60 and above grew from 4.6 million in 2000 to over five million in 2005. The elderly segment is expected to hit 11 million in 2025.

Citing January figures from one hospital, Beneria said half of the senior citizens that undergo medical services such as the ultrasound, a drug and around therapy, said of the 20% discount provided for them by the law.

A higher discount for them would "undoubtedly reduce the income of the hospital," Beneria said in a letter to the House of Representatives.

"If hospitals are further required to extend more discounts to the elderly patients, the margin that is supposed to cover the costs of their non-reversible care (dementia, lung, kidney and coronary arteries, for example) would be reduced," he said.

"The hospital may incur some of the costs by continuously increasing its fees, but the price might become prohibitive to most of its patients," Beneria added. Beneria said the House committee on health has already finished its last leg in the bill.

PIPC VICTIMS WAITING FOR JUSTICE

Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo

President of the Republic of the Philippines

WE ASK FOR FAIRNESS AND JUSTICE TO PREVENT THIS GROUP FROM VICTIMIZING INNOCENT PEOPLE IN THE FUTURE!

It's been a year after the Performance Investment Products Corporation scam which resulted in monetary losses amounting to more or less P6 billion pesos. We the victims are still waiting for justice!!

We are very disappointed by the decision of the Department of Justice consolidating the preliminary investigations of all pending and even future criminal complaints filed against the perpetrators of the PIPC scam into a new panel led by SSP Philipp I. Kimpo, even though preliminary investigations had already been concluded and were just pending resolution by the previous panel. Obviously, the consolidation of all the different criminal complaints will benefit only the perpetrators of the scam...

and other more agents who now only have one set of investigators to be concerned about. The decision to replace the first investigating panel and to consolidate the investigation of the SYNDICATED ESTAFA and VIOLATIONS OF SECURITIES ACT charges were based on a motion filed by the respondents led by Cristina Zamora Gonzalez Tuason. We were not given a chance to comment or contest this motion.

To date, respondent Ernest C. Sy's name has been suspiciously dropped. To date no cases have been filed yet by the DOJ. This unconscionable delay make it possible for the respondents to flee the country and escape prosecution. There are in fact rumors circulating that one of the major respondents in this scam has already left the country and is no where to be found.

Madame President we make this urgent appeal to you for help to ensure that our quest for justice will not be in vain-justice delayed is justice denied.

CONGRATULATIONS FROM:

3-2 SERIES LEAD

Celtics gun for title anew at home

MYSTERY—THE TEAM THAT WINS GAMES ON THE MEN FRODO could be the one that deals with the fatigue of the playoffs best, said Boston Celtics coach Doc Rivers.

The Celtics lead the Los Angeles Lakers 3-2 in the best-of-seven series and could wrap up their first championship in 32 years at home on Tuesday.

Both teams must deal with the grueling game of six games a week, the three-hour switch in time zones following Tuesday night's game in Los Angeles, a 10:30 p.m. start.

"It's a stressful environment, nothing you can do about it," Rivers told reporters. "It's a tough one, as tough as you can have. I think going West to East is tougher."

Both teams have the same issue as it could come down to a game of mental toughness, who fights the biggest mentally better than the other group.

The Celtics have another reason to be fatigued. Tuesday night's game at the colorful 10,000-seat Staples Center will be their longest road trip in the playoffs.

"It's what it is," said Rivers. "It's the playoffs. It's tough. It's the playoffs. I would say both teams will be ready."

The Celtics might be ready for they could be without Kevin McHale, who is out with a strained left shoulder. Los Angeles must also look to win the series. It's necessary. Game Seven in Boston on Thursday night. Considering they lost the first two games of the series in Boston, that is a tall order.

But the Celtics are not taking the game as much of a challenge as the Lakers are.

"We have a great belief in this locker room that we can get a done and be the world champs," said Lakers guard Jordan Farmar. "That's how we got all the way and we are holding our own."

The Celtics look to wrap up their record 27th championship and then in 23 years but Los Angeles guard Kobe Bryant, the league MVP last season, is not taking anything for granted.

"I'm taking camp if you told me we'll get two more games that you have to win to win a championship, we would be going to it in a heartbeat," he said. "This is a great opportunity for us."

Boston's Paul Pierce, though, said they still hold the advantage. "We're not even close to winning yet," he said. "We have the advantage in the series." "I do feel like we're the better team."

Ready the confetti, it's time to celebrate—or panic

By Dan Dougherty
The Boston Globe

BOSTON — TUESDAY NIGHT IS THE night. Being your piece from Boston on Tuesday night. Boston has 17 million eyes on June 15.

It's an occasion as big as home for the Celtics.

Give the Lakers credit. They could have rolled over like dogs. They could have folded their opponent, but they didn't. They fought hard, and they showed themselves a team worthy of respect. They would not let their own building, and their record in the playoffs, beat them down. They'll suffer in the New Garden. Tuesday night is a real thing.

Like the Celtics in Super Bowl XXXII.

Some Celtics have been happy about Boston's Game 5 win. They won the last leg of the series. The Celtics were at home. The Boston team has won a championship in the NBA since Larry Bird and Francis Lee the Boston Celtics won the NBA title in 1986.

"A lot of blue chips are already within their book value levels, that probably inspired investors to pick up bargain stocks," said Gary Galloway of BMO Capital Markets.
 She said the index could test the 2,100 level but warned that it remains key to keep the market from becoming.
 "Investors are focused not on the economy of the country but on global markets. The US economy and oil prices. Everything will depend on the movement of oil since it will determine the direction of inflation," she said.

Neda blames unfavorable economic environment

By Michelle K. Rana

THE COUNTRY'S JOBLESS RATE WORSENEED TO 8 percent in April from 7.4 percent in the same month last year in what economists said was a natural consequence of the less favorable economic environment confronting businesses since the start of the year.

The National Statistics Office yesterday reported that the latest unemployment rate rose to 2.9 million or 8 percent of the 36.47 million population in the country's labor force.

"There is a clear correlation between slower economic growth and the rise in unemployment," said Augusto Tan-on, acting director general of the National Economic and Development Authority.

The economy, as measured by its gross domestic product (GDP), grew 5.2 percent in the first quarter of the year, down from 7 percent in the same period in 2007. GDP is the total value of the goods produced and services rendered within an economy during a given period.

"The softer imported food and other commodities was blamed largely for the downturn in economic growth in the first quarter. A faster increase in prices and headwinds in exports spending, a behavior that adversely affected income generation by businesses. Rising prices also forced companies to cut back on expansion and investment plans."

The NEDA said half, or 49.6 percent, of employed Filipinos in April were working for the private sector. Analysts said this reflected the fact that the services sector has become the main driver of the Philippine economy, especially with the growing number of business process outsourcing companies such as call centers.

The agriculture sector was the second biggest employer, accounting for 23.5 percent of the country's employed population. The industry sector, which includes the manufacturing sub-sector, accounted for 14.9 percent of the employed.

The NEDA said 52 percent of employed Filipinos were considered "marginally employed" workers, meaning they are employed either in part-time or government offices. One-account workers or self-employed individuals accounted for 34.7 percent of employed Filipinos, while casual daily workers stood at 12.3 percent.

DOF STUDY

Customs shortfall due to inefficiency

THE DEPARTMENT OF TRADE AND THE BUREAU OF CUSTOMS (BCT) said in a revenue-generation target in the first quarter largely because of inefficiency in collecting import taxes and duties.

The BCT's collection of P24.7 billion in the first quarter was short by P2.67 billion of its P27.37 billion target.

While the DOF agreed with the explanation of the BCT that structural economic constraints during the period were partly to blame for the lower collection, it said such constraints contributed minimally to the BCT's shortfall in the first quarter.

The larger and complicated portion of the shortfall could be attributed to inefficiency, the DOF said in a study.

The study showed that average two-exporter, year, higher tax credits claimed by businesses, and delivered payment of duties and taxes by some importers pulled down customs collection by P11.2 billion.

This, however, was partly offset by the factors that positively affected customs collection like the increase in the average tariff rate, higher volume of imports, higher crude oil price, and the decline in the share of duty-exempt goods to total imports, which contributed a total of P14.77 billion in additional revenue for the BCT.

On a net basis, the DOF said movements of all concerned macroeconomic indicators dragged down BCT collection by P4.1 billion. This means the

"The ECU's prime is to stabilize incomes, price stability but we are inclined to conduct monetary policy such that the price stability is achieved in as painless manner that will foster growth," said Governor Francisco A. del

Fortunately, the current outlook on the frequency of elections doesn't demand that the president give so much of a personal policy response. Nevertheless, the Montevideo Round is ready to undertake further action as necessary to ensure the achievement of the IMF's basic stability objectives," the IMF stated.

The local control issue is battling environmentalists to close waterways such as the International Mainwarp Pond that in some cases could not be used for the "control" of waterways to address the environmental impact of the waterways.

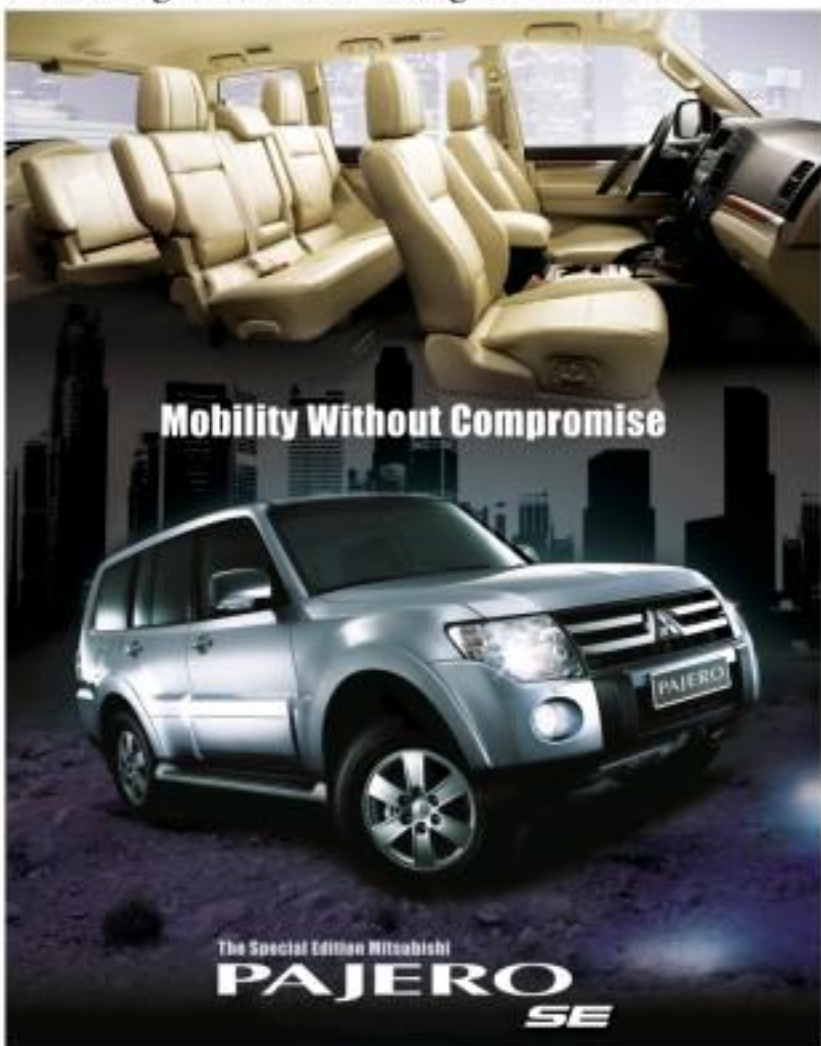

The ERM's policy-making Monetary Board voted its overnight borrowing rate to 5.20 percent from 5 percent, saying its meeting with this month, in what many analysts believed was a bid to a monetary tightening or "hardship" bias. Many economists expect a further increase in the rate of about 50 basis points in the third quarter.

General banks lend to business; monetary policy by hiking interest rates is increasing the reserve requirement on banks as a way to reduce money that would further fuel inflationary and business expansion.

"The common sense we are in also continues to elude. This is a dilemma faced by all practitioners of monetary policy, specifically those who are in the ground not making the hard decisions everyday," Townsend said.

Traders commit to gov't rice program

LOCAL GRAIN TRADERS HAVE committed to supply the domestic market with rice priced at P23 a kilo, to a bid in each month until the price of the rice.

According to the National Food Authority, this commitment will help make rice more affordable to ordinary consumers.

NFA Administrator Jesus O. Sison said that under the program "Malunggayed ng Ina, Ina-lalake ng Ina-lake ng Ina-lake," grain sellers and wholesalers had agreed to directly purchase rice from the government to help stabilize the supply and price of commercial rice.

Sison said that the traders, in consultation with retailers, would put up special rice bins in their respective markets, which they would supply with commercially sourced commercial rice.

Earlier this week, the NFA had started flooding the market with additional high-grade commercial rice, which is double the rice allocation of commercial rice.

Pushed to the Malunggayed ng Ina-lalake ng Ina-lake ng Ina-lake, the bid of rice priced at P23 a kilo is being sold directly to consumers.

The move "helped bring down the price of commercial rice from what was being sold by private traders," the NFA said.

The agency added that consumers could still buy the food agency's P16.25 a kilo regular ration rice through the agency's ration stores and ration store outlets.

Malunggay eyed as soybean meal substitute

THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE is testing the high protein malunggay meal as a cheaper alternative to soybean meal.

According to Alex Bags, DA Technology Program Director, the agency is now gathering evidence through feeding trials conducted by an organization called Biotech. The group uses malunggay leaves as cattle, swine and poultry feed.

Bags said the DA also plans to conduct in-house feeding trials soon. Farmers and food suppliers value soybean meal for its high-quality protein content. But concerns over increasing prices of the ingredient have triggered the search for an alternative and cheaper protein source.

Most of soybean and soybean meal have mostly doubled since 2008. Soybean meal now costs P23 a kilo, up from last year's P16.25.

In most local requirements, the country imports some 750 billion worth of soybean meal every year, the DA said in a statement.

Malunggay has been used, but these items have deficiencies as soybean meal alternatives, the DA said.

With malunggay containing 50 percent of the best, with yields for dairy cows and dairy weight gain for cattle reportedly increased by 50 percent.

The DA said that, in some of the protein content, malunggay leaves could provide 45 percent protein, while extracted meal could provide as much as 50 percent protein.

Given 40 percent protein, Any it, however

TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS a barrel...a concept we dare not think of, yet something we need to consider as a possibility in the foreseeable future. Even if the exact formula was available to calculate what level pump prices would look like at that point, that estimate would really just be a guess and a half. Let's just say if you already feel the pinch at the pump now, better be ready with an epidemic when all hell's double-breasted suit.

Battery Hybrid, Hydrogen, Bioethanol, Jet, Fuel-cooking oil, Photovoltaic technology (okay, not the automobile use, but the future will be a real change from the alternative). From a road tested with millions of rotary combustion, either (picking or welding, isn't a very pretty picture, but I have to admit) though that the image of a donkey pulling an SUV would be pretty funny.

Predicting the future is not an exacting task. From the automobile manufacturers, all are in the race to be the best out of the situation. We

MY DRIFT

Need to keep deep into the single-vehicle territory was that has gotten us to the top of the food chain. Most likely, we need to adapt to this crisis and the technology enables us to get to use of it all. Nature is the only one that will survive; we have a few similar to various conditions in a natural state. It's human.

The first step

Changing our mindset is the first step. While trying to save money by doing less, it is a noble idea, it is not. The automobile is a machine that is not a machine, but a machine. There is a single about consumption that goes "the more we use, the less there is for someone else in the world." This is the closest free-lunch, but it's and gasoline.

Included in the automobile industry of economic impact, many fall to see the consequences of consumption of resources. This is a sad, of course, more like with greater while, instead means to go into consumer awareness. And there is always someone who higher in the parking order, to matter less detailed person.

By reducing your personal stride in the world's oil reserves, you do your bit to make life easier for the rest of us. Go along enough number of people to reduce their dependence on oil and making things can happen. At least, manufacturers are inclined to the gas-pumping SUV segment have been drastically cutting down on production.

Billions of dollars in research and development funds have gone into alternative fuel. In a recent poll, more and more people more consider fuel-efficient vehicles rather than the latest sports cars. Times are truly changing. Automobile the world is taking in a darker hue.

of growing by day

Reducing fuel demand

What needs to be done is to keep to the demand for fuel. The more the petroleum companies are that less and less of their product is being sold, they have to rethink their pricing strategies. It would be a long time when we can reach it as much as money. It must be said with fuel shortages.

As we wait for this crisis situation to subside, we the consumers need to keep the pressure up. More effective than the highly publicized mass action, the sweeping destruction by world leaders and the reduction of oil production, the reduction of oil production is the action of the individual consumer.

Not personal action would make a truly global effort. By simply reducing lighters than before, consumers have made the world, places of the automotive and petroleum industries grow and reduce their strategies for world domination. Now that's powerful stuff.

own edition. In general, all MGAs require an oil and every work on although the standard engine was considered by some to be more reliable than the twin ones. The MGA had a 4-speed manual transmission with synchronized 2nd, 3rd and 4th gears to select from 0 to 100 mph in 13.5 seconds and its top speed was 100 mph.

After three iterations...the 1500 MGA 1955-59, the MGA 1600 Black from May 1959 to 1961, the MGA 1600 Black II from March 1961 until May 1962...production ceased in July 1962 and the MGA was replaced by the MGX. Today the MGA remains the most popular British sports car of all time.

The first F2000 Spider produced from 1995 to 1999, is considered one of the finest models in the line of the MGA factory. A redesign by Pininfarina of the colored 340 series, the F2000 Spider represented a new generation in terms of speed and quality and performance and was the standard to which the F1000 also had a considerable reputation for reliability.

The F2000 was launched in 1994 as a first-hand Berlusconi and was later followed by Targa and Spider versions. Its 3.0-liter rear-wheel-drive, mid-engine was very different from that of the MGA. The F2000 engine's greatest innovation was its five valves per cylinder, three intake and two exhaust, combining high-rev with high torque much like Ferrari's Formula One cars. In accordance with racing design, Ferrari engineers created an extremely compact high-revving combustion chamber of 11.0 compression ratio for the F2000. Ferrari's 1000-horsepower electronically injected combustion system with fuel injection, derived directly from F1 technology, derived from the F2000, signaling a new era in 1.6-liter design and performance.

Sixshot

The F2000 had a top speed of 100 mph and slight from 100 mph to 130 mph in 4.6 seconds. One of the best handling cars in the world, the F2000 weighed only 1,250 lbs. due to its aluminum engine block and aluminum body. It had an adjustable suspension with two damper settings available for sport driving and regular road driving. High-revving sports drive wheels covered with 16-inch Brembo disc brakes.

The owner of the F2000 Spider showed her own that the complete racing from the F2000's entrance as she was largely to the pleasure from a powerful growl as life in a beautiful drive and there in F1-style accents in the needle reaches 1,000 rpm. Ferrari had produced over 11,000 F2000 models by the time it was replaced in 2000 by the more dramatic but less elegant 360 Modena. Many believed it was early retirement. The F2000, the most desirable Ferrari of the time, is now a sought-after car collector's item.

Teaching safety riding at the grassroots level

Text and photos by Charles B. Baber

I TIED TO BE THAT WHEN MY friends began to ride motorcycles, they were quick to ask me if I could teach them. I am a graduate of the Philippine National Police Academy and a graduate of the Philippine National Police Academy. I am a graduate of the Philippine National Police Academy and a graduate of the Philippine National Police Academy.

There are a lot of people who are interested in riding motorcycles. They are interested in riding motorcycles. They are interested in riding motorcycles. They are interested in riding motorcycles. They are interested in riding motorcycles.

With a rate of 7 in 1, motorcycle accidents are the leading cause of death in the Philippines. And this number is expected to further grow by 5 percent.

Workshops

With this reality, a number of local motorcycle manufacturers need to be equipped with the proper safety riding training as part of their corporate responsibility.

"We don't want the market to expect our products to disappear. When of these motorcycle-related injuries and deaths could be prevented if riders and their passengers were correct protective gear—most especially helmets—so that they protect proper riding habits," said Noel Villagracia, Suzuki Philippines safety riding instructor.

Reach out

"It used to reach out to our market. As we visit various cities and municipalities around the country, we make it a point to teach local riders about safety and even parents to guide them in a safe riding habits," explained Noel Villagracia, Suzuki Philippines safety riding instructor.

Research study is proving effective in this way observed when he met with the motorcycle riders during at Easton's 10th Philippine Region Corporate Office.

The next, more important, the group held a Suzuki Safety Workshop, which focuses on teaching riders to the safe and correct riding habits during the training activities, participant participants and safety riding workshops.

"We used to attract their attention and keep them interested to be well-informed riders with prior to be in local level basic and intermediate level riders."

Role model

As the group completed the 10th Philippine Region Workshop, Suzuki made sure that all the members of the motorcycle riders were following good riding habits.

"We are showing the people around them getting to know them which is best as a means to protect in the case of unexpected accidents," explained Noel Villagracia, Suzuki Philippines safety riding instructor.

Another idea, however, is to add that the group need not have to be a motorcycle rider to be a role model. It will also show people around that riding is a group (with each member having their designated assignments) with a level of safety as well as a role model in showing the group is moving at high speed or going through highly populated areas.

Sex and the City's main guy needs to be taught a lesson in grand gestures

By Pam Pater

IF YOU HAVEN'T SEEN THE Sex and the City movie yet and you're planning to, don't read this entry. You will waste my neck for hurling spears your way.

Dear Sir,
 You mean a lesson in grand gestures. When you put a girl through the kind of crap you've put Carrie through, you shouldn't get her in the end. So if you do, it should have been the result of not just one but a series of grand gestures.

Gracious as grand, as grand as grand you, please so grand they would erase all some of your miserable deeds, gracious as grand they would melt the heat of hell, gracious as grand they would make her love you all the while you're not but her for years. Keeping other people's love interest for a grand gesture.

One already a small? Not a grand gesture. Bringing Quince to the hospital? Not a grand gesture. Any half decent human being would have done the same thing.

Waiting to the hospital to happen of seeing Carrie? Not a grand gesture. You know where she lives, you know her.

Free laundry services being stocked to the head with fruit baskets. The disappointed is not a bunch of lies.

But who still kidding? You're just a character they wrote. They made you up. I should be thanking the writers.

See you later.

Dear Sir,

I loved the ending but I loved the movie. I loved Charlotte. I loved Andy. I loved Steve and Brandon. Bridge. I loved the others. I loved Carrie in some parts. But you—oh, you I loathed.

Music camp for street children

By Row Cruz
Contributor

A MUSIC CAMP IS probably the last place you'd find rock musicians and 20-something yuppies on a Sunday.

But for the past few months, the lastest spots have had a weekly music camp to teach creative and alternative education to street children.

Guns, guitars, singing, and dance lessons, the kids learn how to appreciate the arts in the dark corners of the streets.

Some of these lessons were exhibited in the Nokia artists' coming together to serve (Nokia) music, the brand of Nokia Philippines and Rocklife Philippines.

William Hernandez Whips, Nokia Philippines general manager, watched the evening performance of the children.

"Through Nokia Arts," Hernandez Whips said, "we hope to make an impact in the lives of not only the children, who will be part of this but also to their communities."

The Nokia Arts program has three phases. In the first phase, the children are taught to use a musical instrument. In the second, they rehearse as a band, and in the last phase, they put on their act for a performance.

This music camp's volunteer coaches include Pinoy de Werra, Juan Miguel Lemos, and Jay Capones of Rocklife Philippines Project, and Neil Cabanog of Nokia Philippines.

Rocklife Philippines founder and executive director Greg Bailey said that the program encourages teachers and students.

"It is in giving out of one's pocket to others that we can truly make a difference," he said. "The Nokia Arts program, together with Rocklife, intends to make a sound and the heart."

The key is to use a lot of training and outdoor clothes, hats, and comprehensive use of the staff or, best, a great line, spending the time to do it before the photographer really makes a difference. Once you've got yourself a good look like this, you will have to find a unique angle to work with. Once it becomes a chore, it's not worth it anymore. I've seen people crash and burn trying too hard to get great pictures. It's okay if not all your shots are perfect. OK, that's bad. What to do, what to do? It's a Q-13 situation. If you go all-out and don't let it be the same place, then what happens next will depend on your blood-alcohol-to-brain-kind-of-eyes-for-it is.

Around the world on a Disney boat

HONG KONG—HONGKONG recently launched its newest ride, a unique, updated and totally jaw-dropping version of the classic attraction "It's a Small World."

Created by Walt Disney and his team of Imagineers for the 1964 New York World's Fair in New York City, the attraction officially opened at Disneyland, California on May 28, 1966, with various variations appearing in Walt Disney World in Florida, Tokyo Disney Resort and Disneyland Resort, Paris.

Now, the attraction—a traveling boat trip that takes guests on a journey across the continents of the world, featuring singing and dancing dolls and a vibrant musical experience—is finally in Hong Kong Disneyland.

The ride might have been long lost to its world, it also Hong Kong Disneyland's version promises to be as good as its earlier counterparts, if not better with the addition of new features.

Before taking the ride, guests can take photos in front of the attraction's facade, which is a big world of people featuring various versions of famous landmarks such as the Eiffel Tower, the Big Ben and the Leaning Tower of Pisa.

In the center is the Small World Clock Tower Parade, showcasing a big globe in a traditional regional costume that appears every quarter of an hour to announce the time in parks. There are 18 sets representing children from around the world, the most diverse of which is the Chinese Opera Character, which is unique to Hong Kong Disneyland.

At night, the facade is lit up with more charming with illuminated signs on the attraction's facade.

What sets the Hong Kong version of "It's a Small World" apart from the other versions is

The North and South America stage shows dancing programs from Chile and performing native children and animals from Colombia, Peru and Bolivia. In this set, you can also see the beautiful Pussicato singing on a meadow and Anna and Elsa of "Frozen" from Disney's Frozen.

Of course, the colorful Asia region has been expanded and is now the largest of the attractions. This set is filled with Chinese characters, from scholars and dancing boys in lanterns and the Great Wall of China. When it's time to sing, the boat is like a boat, like the dragon boat race for the dragon boat race from Cambodia, Indonesia, Laos, Thailand, Vietnam, and Japan.
